COLCHESTER REAL ALE PUB GUIDE

This is an updated version of the Colchester & N.E. Essex branch of CAMRA's guide to the public houses that serve real ale in Colchester, and to assist visitors to the town to enjoy them. There are a few additional pubs in this guide, and revised details where applicable. Most of the pubs are within a walking distance of the town centre, with a few reachable by bus. There is a map to help guide you in the right direction. This booklet also accompanies our guide to the real ale pubs in the rest of our branch area.

The information in the guide was correct at the time the pubs were surveyed, but this can change over time. Visitors who wish to visit particular pubs can always ring them beforehand to check that the details are still relevant.

Colchester & N.E. Essex branch of CAMRA has regular meetings held in a pub in the branch area. We also have a very good social aspect which includes brewery visits, trips to various pubs, cycling trips, walking trips and trips to pubs in other towns and cities. There is also a young members group. We hold two beer festivals a year, one in January and one in June. Full details of the trips and beer festivals can be found on our website along with more information about the branch.

FURTHER READING

Colchester has a long history of pubs and brewing that must date back to Roman times and beyond. For a greater insight into the history of all the pubs listed in this guide, and many many more in the Colchester district, we recommend tracking down a copy of Jess Jephcott's fantastic book compiling years of work delving through the record books, finding licensee's details, dates, maps and interesting facts about each drinking establishment.

Colchester has a diverse range of licensed premises, including historic old coaching inns, used as welcome stop off points on the route from London to the ports of Ipswich and Harwich. Major factory works towards the Hythe area of Colchester, and the building of military barracks, encouraged many new alehouses to open, there being, at one time, around 24 between St Botolph's Corner and the docks on the River Colne.

As new landlords take their place behind the bars of Colchester, so they too, become a new updated entry towards the next edition of this fascinating living document.

The INNS, TAVERNS and PUBS of COLCHESTER by Jess A Jephcott

These books are printed in short runs and are periodically updated. Thus they are not always available to purchase but you can view a 2007 digital version online at: www.camulos.com/inns/1intro.htm. Otherwise try Red Lion Books in Colchester's High Street.
